WHAT WE BRING

HUMAN STORIES IN VETMED

ATDOVE.ORG'S NEW PODCAST HIGHLIGHTS THE HUMANS BEHIND THE ANIMALS WE CARE FOR

This past year has had a unique impact on the veterinary industry as we all have had to adjust to new protocols, increased patient counts, and more.

Our new podcast, What We Bring, offers an inside look at the stories and experiences of people who care for our pets. We hope you'll join us!

ABOUT THE SHOW

When we walk onto the floor for our shift, we all bring with us our own unique stories. What We Bring examines the human experiences of those working in veterinary medicine, from the front desk to the O.R. Join DoveLewis Veterinary Well-Being Director Debrah Lee, LCSW, as she explores the real human stories behind the animals we care for.

We hope this podcast will shine a light on the experiences (good and bad) we bring with us to the clinic, and help move us towards greater openness and understanding as an industry. We know that not every lesson can be found in textbooks and training plans, so we're turning to each other to connect, listen, learn, and grow.

WHERE TO FIND US

MEET HOST DEBRAH LEE, LCSW

Debrah Lee, LCSW, joined the DoveLewis team in 2020 as the Veterinary Well-Being Program Director. Coming from a background in human healthcare, Debrah has long had an interest in how emotionally-demanding medical settings affect both patients and providers. Debrah brings a compassionate presence and deep appreciation for the human experiences that connect us, and she is eager to learn more from veterinary professionals about their experiences within the world of veterinary medicine.
